NEXT LEVELS: AT THE DISCRETION OF THE TOURNAMENT DIRECTOR

All breaks are carried out according to the table above unless the Tournament Organizer thinks otherwise. When the final table is created, another ten (10) minute break is in order.

- 3.17. The game begins with the dealer collecting and shuffling all the cards. Any bet increase flagged by the tournament's computerized Management System, takes place after the game in progress is completed.
- 3.18. Each player's chips remain on the table, in such a way that the highest value is visible to all players. This must continue, until each game period is completed. The casino reserves the right to remove chips from the table, that have been deliberately hidden.
- 3.19. Participants active in a "hand", have the right to ask the amount of chips available to another active participant in the same "hand". If a participant does not wish to reveal this information, the dealer counts the chips and answers the question.
- 3.20. Should all participants in the same "hand", go all-in and there's no further betting, it is mandatory the show all cards faced up in order for the dealing to be continued.
- 3.21. Only tournament chips can be used in the game.

- 3.22. Should, during the same “hand”, two (or more) participants of the same table are eliminated from the game, the positions occupied by them, in the tournament ranking, are proportional to the amount of chips they held, before the commencement of that particular “hand” (the one during which they were eliminated).
- 3.23. Should, during the same “hand”, two participants from different tables are eliminated from the game, they occupy the same ranking position in the tournament, regardless the amount of chips they had, before the commencement of the specific “hand” (the one during which they were eliminated).
- 3.24. During race off process, each player receives a maximum of one chip. The process begins from the first player positioned to the left of the dealer button and includes all players who hold chips of the value that is being removed.
- 3.25. Players are not allowed to leave the table until the dealer has completed the initial deal. The dealer, after having completed the initial deal and before starting the hand, collects the cards from all empty positions. Mandatory and blind bets are collected and placed in the pot.
- 3.26. To ensure a smooth operation, the casino has the right to move players from one table to another in order to maintain balance between tables, as follows:
Before the race off process of 100-point chips and 500-point chips or until the closure of late registration, the difference between two players, from table to table, is acceptable. However, after the 100-point and 500-point chips race off process or after the closure of late registration the difference between tables is balanced, when feasible. In addition, for the above reason, the casino reserves the right to cease the tournament on the table with the fewest players, until the players’ transfer from one table to another is completed.
- 3.27. Each player has two minutes to act. After this interval, any active or non-active player of the table, has the right to request “time”. The one player whose turn is to play, will be given an additional minute to decide. If after this one minute the player has not yet made a decision, a ten-second countdown takes place and if exceeded, the player’s card (hand) is void.
